Local Anaesthesia for Dental Hygienists is a three and one-half day course, designed to teach basic and current concepts of local anaesthesia, and administration of local anaesthetic agents. This course is comprised of two sessions. As participants practice on each other, you must be able to receive local anaesthesia or you must provide a stand-in for your partner.

1. Session I – (two-full days, September 14 and 15) consists of didactic information, instruction, and application of clinical techniques.
2. Session II – October 4 (evening) and 5 (full day), written and clinical evaluations.

During the interval between session I and session II participants must arrange to practice the techniques taught under personal supervision in a dental office. Further details regarding this practice period will be sent with your study guide.

If you are from out of province, it is your responsibility to make arrangements to complete your practicum in British Columbia or in a jurisdiction where dental hygienists may legally administer local anaesthetic agents.
